It is with great pride and a fair amount of sadness that we share SHAFR's 2020 Conference Program with all of you. Despite the fact that this year's conference has been cancelled due to COVID-19, we hope the program provides a reminder of the incredible community that makes up the SHAFR ecosystem. We hope that you take extra care in reading through this year's program and that you will reach out to presenters whose topics pique your interest. Even in this era of social distancing, we can continue to find meaning as we build and sustain robust connections with one another. We are also fortunate that today's telecommunications technologies allow us to do so. So, we invite you to use this program as a way to maintain connections and to forge new ones, just as you would have done in person this June.

It was a pleasure and a privilege to put together this year's conference program. We greatly admired the creativity, rigor, and care with which each of you thought about and presented your scholarship. It was both fascinating and inspiring to learn about all the amazing, critical, and path-breaking research that so many SHAFR members are conducting. We are truly impressed with the remarkably diverse and stimulating program that your papers and panels enabled us to construct. We appreciate all of you for submitting your work and for being part of this terrific program.

Many people helped make this conference a success, and we would like to take a moment to express our gratitude to them. We would like to begin by thanking the members of our program committee (listed on the opposite page). They offered prompt and thoughtful feedback and made our job as co-chairs easy. Working with SHAFR President Kristin Hoganson has been a distinct honor. From the moment we started to plan this conference last summer, Kristin was brimming with great ideas and eager to organize a fabulous conference with us. As the global health crisis has unfolded over these last few months, she has helped us navigate difficult decisions with grace and integrity. She is a model of good leadership. Over the past year, SHAFR's Executive Director, Amy Sayward, and Conference Consultant, Amanda Bundy, have both been unflappable. We have no doubt that our conference would have gone off without a hitch thanks to their tireless work. SHAFR's IT Director, George Fujii, has been equally invaluable. He helped us navigate the complexities of the online proposal submission system and provided a great deal of advice and guidance as we contemplated moving elements of our conference online. Last but not least, our conference assistant, Charlie Harris, was an enormous asset to us, bringing order out of chaos as we planned and constructed the program. We invite you to join us in raising a toast to each of these individuals and thanking them for their service to SHAFR.

Both of us eagerly await the SHAFR conference every year, for we keenly value the professional and social ties that it enables us to cultivate. Whether listening to panels, discussing papers, or socializing with old friends, SHAFR is without question the most intellectually vibrant and collegial conference that we attend. We are deeply disappointed that we will not be convening this year in New Orleans, yet we are heartened to know that many future conferences and gatherings await us in the years ahead. We look forward to the next time we can come together again in person to discuss today's events and to exchange ideas about global history, international relations, and our shared commitments to research, teaching, and public engagement. In the meantime, we'll sustain our professional and personal connections by visiting the on-line conference page on the SHAFR website (when it goes live in June), reading each other's books and articles, conversing with one another in the virtual sphere, and celebrating the collective achievements and accomplishments of SHAFR members.

We wish you and your loved ones peace and health, and hope to see you all before too long.

All the best,

Gretchen Heefner & Julia Irwin

SHAFR Policy on Sexual Harassment and Sexual Misconduct

SHAFR is committed to fostering an environment free from discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. Our organization's collective professional and intellectual pursuits can only be realized when we treat one another with dignity and respect. To this end, SHAFR prohibits discrimination or harassment on the basis of sex, gender identity, gender expression, and sexual orientation. The protections and prohibitions in this policy extend to any guests and members participating in SHAFR-sponsored events. All members and participants, including employees, contractors, vendors, volunteers, and guests, are expected to engage in professional and respectful behavior and to preserve common standards of professionalism.

The following policy pertains to all SHAFR activities, including events associated with SHAFR conferences and any SHAFR-related business occurring throughout the year. It encompasses interactions in person, by telephone, and by electronic communication.

Sexual Harassment: SHAFR has absolutely no tolerance for sexual harassment. Sexual harassment is behavior (speech or actions) in formal or informal settings that demeans, humiliates, or threatens an individual on the basis of their sex, gender, gender expression, or sexual orientation. Sexual harassment can also take nonsexual forms and includes discriminatory remarks or actions based on an individual's sex, gender, gender expression, or sexual orientation. Sexual harassment includes unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal comment or physical conduct of a sexual nature, including situations in which the request or conduct involves any implied or expressed promise of professional reward for complying; or the request or conduct involves any implied or expressed threat of reprisal or denial of opportunity for refusing to comply; or the request or conduct results in what reasonably may be perceived as a hostile or intimidating environment. Sexual harassment does not refer to occasional compliments of a socially acceptable nature or consensual personal and social relationships without discriminatory effect. It refers to behavior that reasonably situated persons would regard as not welcome and as personally intimidating, hostile, or offensive. According to U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) guidelines, the victim of harassment can be anyone affected by the offensive conduct, not just the individual at whom the conduct is directed.

Sexual Misconduct. SHAFR has absolutely no tolerance for other forms of sexual misconduct. Sexual misconduct is a broad term encompassing any unwelcome behavior of a sexual nature that is committed without consent or by force, intimidation, coercion, or manipulation. Sexual misconduct can be committed by a person of any gender, and it can occur between people of the same or different genders. Sexual misconduct may vary in its severity and consists of a range of behavior or attempted behavior. It can occur between strangers or acquaintances, including people involved in an intimate or sexual relationship. It includes but is not limited to: sexual assault (a continuum of conduct from forcible intercourse to nonphysical forms of pressure that compel individuals to engage in sexual activity against their will); sexual exploitation (taking nonconsensual, unjust, or abusive sexual advantage of another person); and sexual intimidation (threatening another person that you will commit a sex act against them or engaging in indecent exposure).

Consent. For the purposes of this policy, consent is a freely and affirmatively communicated willingness to participate in particular sexual activity or behavior, expressed either by words or clear, unambiguous actions. Consent can be withdrawn at any time, and, by definition, a person is incapable of consent if the person is unable to understand the facts, nature, extent, or implications of the situation and/or if the person is incapacitated, which includes incapacitation by extreme intoxication, drug use, mental disability, or being unconscious. Critically, the person initiating a particular sexual activity or behavior bears the responsibility of receiving consent. In examining the existence of consent under this policy, SHAFR will seek to determine, in view of the totality of the circumstances, whether a reasonable person would conclude that the recipient of the initiated sexual activity or behavior was (a) capable of consenting and (b) affirmatively communicated consent to the sexual activity or behavior at issue by words or clear, unambiguous actions.

Retaliation: Retaliation against a complainant of sexual harassment or other forms of sexual misconduct is also a violation of these policies.

Members and other conference attendees should be aware that their home institution's policies (such as Title IX) may require them to report allegations of sexual harassment or other forms of sexual misconduct involving people affiliated with their institution. SHAFR reserves the right to respond truthfully to authorized inquiries received from a member's employer concerning allegations, proceedings, and outcomes under this policy.

This policy is clearly and prominently displayed on the SHAFR website. All participants in the annual meeting and anyone obtaining or renewing a SHAFR membership are required during the registration process formally to acknowledge the policy and their responsibility to abide by it.

Complaints: SHAFR will designate a complaints team that will be available to receive complaints from, describe reporting procedures to, provide advice on resources to, and discuss issues with participants in any SHAFR-sanctioned activity who have experienced or witnessed violations of this policy. The team's contact information will be made available on the SHAFR website and in annual meeting registration materials. Neither the team nor any other SHAFR official can provide legal advice to those who make reports under this policy.

Members, staff, or guests who in good faith believe that they have been aggrieved by or witnessed conduct prohibited by this policy should contact the SHAFR complaints team. SHAFR will review each report and endeavor to respond proportionally and fairly. Responses may range from informal resolutions agreed to by the parties to investigations conducted by trained external investigators. SHAFR reserves the right to take interim steps during an event, such as a narrowly tailored "no contact" directive between the parties.

Annual Report: The Executive Director will prepare an annual report of complaints or other evidence of policy violations (with no names used). The report will be circulated to the full Council at the January meeting and made available to the membership on request. The report may also identify how many reports were received, the forms of discrimination and misconduct alleged, how long the matter took to be resolved, and the outcome.

Some text in this policy is adapted from documents produced by the American Historical Association, the Shakespeare Association of America, the Society of Biblical Literature, and the University of Iowa.

Approved by SHAFR Council on January 28, 2019
