

DEPARTMENT: History

RANK: Assistant Professor in Intelligence and Security History

ABOUT THE POSITION: The Department of History at the University of Alabama in Huntsville is taking applicants for a tenure-track position in Intelligence and Security History. Preference is for candidates with a specialization in modern US history, and/or the ability to teach foreign relations, and/or military history. This candidate will support the creation of an interdisciplinary graduate intelligence and security program. The successful candidate will ideally engage with and form partnerships with colleagues at Redstone Arsenal, the FBI, and other area agencies. Candidates who have practical experience working in intelligence, national security, or a related field are especially encouraged to apply.

The teaching load is three courses (nine credit hours) per semester and may include online, hybrid, and traditional formats. The candidate will teach modern world history and/or US surveys, as well as upper-level and graduate courses in the candidate's area of specialty.

Qualifications: PhD in History or in closely related field required. PhD in history preferred. A strong commitment to teaching is required.

APPOINTMENT DATE: August 7, 2025
